

AFPA Bulletin: 15 December 2008 NEW POLICE MEDAL FOR DILIGENT SERVICE

On 4 December 2008 the AFPA National President Jon Hunt-Sharman and PFA CEO Mark Burgess met with the Minister for Home Affairs, Mr Bob Debus in relation to the Rudd Government's election promise to the AFPA/PFA to establish a specific National Police Service Medal.

The AFPA is pleased to advise that the Rudd Government has formally announced a new National Police Service Medal which will be awarded to State, Territory and Federal Police in recognition of long and diligent service.

A proposed design for the NPSM

In his public announcement, the Minister for Home Affairs, Bob Debus, said the medal recognised the special status police had because of their role protecting the community.

"This new medal shows our continuing support for the work done by the 50,000 men and women who place their own safety at risk to protect our quality of life, security and freedom."

"I would also like to acknowledge the work done by the Police Federation of Australia, which consistently raised the issue with me on behalf of its members," Mr Debus said.

Cabinet Secretary, Senator John Faulkner, said the Queen had approved the establishment of a separate medal in the Australian honours system. "Recognition for police service since the establishment of Australia's national system of honours and awards in 1975 has been through the National Medal."

"The National Medal will continue to recognise long and diligent service by members of organisations that help the community during times of crisis, including fire, ambulance, emergency and voluntary search and rescue organisations," Senator Faulkner said.

The PFA CEO, Mark Burgess, said the decision would be welcomed by members. "It is a tangible acknowledgement by the Government of the unique role that police officers play in the preservation of peace, the protection of life and property and the maintenance of law and order throughout Australia."

Police will have to serve a minimum of 15 years to be eligible. Eligibility for the award will commence 30 October 2008 and it's expected the first awards will be made in the second half of 2009.

The AFPA is appreciative of the commitment and determination by the Minister for Home Affairs Bob Debus and the Prime Minister Kevin Rudd to achieve this outcome for Police members in such a short time frame.

If you have any queries about the issues raised in this bulletin please contact your local representatives or visit your AFPA Zone Discussion Forum at <https://secure.afpa.org.au/members/> . If you have forgotten your password, contact the AFPA National Office on Ph 02 62851677 or 162484 for a new password.